Additional Resources

ON THIS PAGE: You will find some helpful links to other areas of Cancer.Net that provide information about medical care and treatment. This is the final page of Cancer.Net?s Guide to Myelodysplastic Syndromes (MDS). To go back and review other pages, use the colored boxes on the right side of your screen, or click ?Previous? at the bottom.

Cancer.Net includes many other sections about the medical and emotional aspects of MDS, both for the person diagnosed and their family members and friends. This website is meant to be a resource for you and your loved ones from the time of diagnosis, through treatment, and beyond. Here are a few sections that may get you started in exploring the rest of Cancer.Net:

- Search for a specialist in your local area using this free database of doctors from the American Society of Clinical Oncology [2].
- Review dictionary articles to help understand phrases and terms used in medical care and treatment [3].
- Read more about the first steps to take when newly diagnosed with MDS [4].
- Learn more about coping with the emotions that MDS can bring, including those within a family or a relationship. [5]
- Find a national, not-for-profit advocacy organization that may offer additional information, services, and support for people with MDS [6].
- Explore next steps a person can take after active treatment is complete [7].

This is the end of Cancer.Net?s Guide to Myelodysplastic Syndromes (MDS). Choose ?Previous? (below, left) to review other pages in this guide, or use the colored boxes located on the right side of your screen to visit any section.
